Sigma History

SUGGESTED COPY

Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, Incorporated was founded at Howard University in Washington, D.C. on January 9, 1914, by three young men who wanted to organize a Greek-letter fraternity that would genuinely support the goals of college men and their broader community.

The founders — Honorable A. Langston Taylor, Honorable Leonard F. Morse, and Honorable Charles I. Brown — established the fraternity on the three ideals of Brotherhood, Scholarship, and Service. Phi Beta Sigma was founded with the deliberate intent of "not only doing good but doing it well" — and remains the only fraternity to have a sister organization, Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc., by design.

Today, Phi Beta Sigma has over 700 chapters and more than 150,000 members worldwide, including chapters across the United States and internationally in Africa, Europe, and Asia.
